Announcement

For those of you who have enjoyed the health and welfare blog posts, I wanted to let you know of a major announcement coming soon. We are currently in the process of updating and expanding the blog site. When that is complete, we will be sending an announcement regarding our expanded content and new contributing authors. In addition, you can look forward to a new topic coming in March. We will be reviewing the employee benefit aspects of a weekly television show, and showing how employee benefits can even touch cinematic lives. Which television show you ask? Well, for now, I will merely give you an acronym - WWHD? In the meantime, please continue to enjoy our blog posts.
