

Insights: Publications

Analytics Playing a Growing Role in Partner Compensation

Law Times

November 16, 2015

Written by Daniel J. Ronesi

Metrics have become the latest buzzword in the ongoing struggle to bring order to the thorny issue of partner compensation at law firms. While there have been suggestions that traditional compensation models at law firms rely on outdated standards that incorporate subjective evaluations to varying degrees, it's not that statistical input has suddenly become a leading-edge tool in evaluating partner earnings.

Related People

Daniel J. Ronesi

t 404.745.2515

dronesi@ktslaw.com