Kilpatrick Townsend Adds Ronald McKenzie to the Firm's Atlanta Office

February 23, 2016

ATLANTA (February 23) – Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton announced today the addition of Ronald McKenzie to the firm's Atlanta office. Mr. McKenzie joins the firm as an associate on the Government Enforcement and Investigations Team in the firm's Litigation Department.

Prior to joining the firm, Mr. McKenzie was an associate at Miller & Chevalier Chartered in Washington, D.C. His practice focuses on internal investigations and white collar criminal defense.

Mr. McKenzie earned his J.D. from Harvard Law School, where he served as the Junior Editor of the Harvard Law & Policy Review and Co-Chairman of the Black Law Students Association's Political Advocacy Committee. He also represented criminal defendants in Boston Municipal Court as a student in Harvard's Criminal Justice Institute. Mr. McKenzie was an active member of Harvard Defenders, a student practice organization at Harvard Law School that provides free representation to low-income defendants in criminal show-cause hearings before clerk-magistrates. He received his B.A. in Political Science from Emory University.
