

Insights: Publications

Navigating a Chicago Audit and the Procedure for a Formal Protest

National Law Review Blog

April 9, 2018

Written by Samantha K. Breslow

Although not on the mind of most taxpayers, an audit by the City of Chicago Department of Finance ("Department") is a risk for any taxpayer who may be operating in the City or who enters Chicago for any business purpose. With a variety of unusual taxes, such as the Chicago Amusement Tax, Personal Property Lease Transaction Tax, and Real Property Transfer Tax, compliance is no easy task and an audit can come as an unwelcome surprise.

Related People

Samantha K. Breslow

t 312.606.3206

sbreslow@ktslaw.com