by Bryan J. Wolin , Laura C. Miller , Tywanda Harris Lord , Evan S. Nadel

The advertising landscape moves at breakneck speed. Between the rapid evolution of digital platforms and a shifting regulatory environment, staying ahead of the curve is no longer just a goal—it is a business necessity. At Kilpatrick, we launched the Ad-Vantage Blog to provide our clients and the broader marketing community with a strategic edge, translating complex legal developments into actionable insights.

As we continue to explore the nuances of claim substantiation, FTC guidance, recent NAD and court decisions, the impact of AI on advertising, and much more, we want to introduce you to the primary drivers behind our advertising law practice. Our multidisciplinary team combines deep litigation and NAD experience with practical, in-house perspectives to help you protect your brand and keep your creative work compliant.

Meet Our Primary Contacts

Kilpatrick boasts an extensive Advertising Counseling and Disputes Team. In this post, we are featuring four key partners.

Bryan Wolin (New York)

Bryan is the impetus behind Kilpatrick's Ad-Vantage Blog, and has been recognized as "One to Watch" by The Best Lawyers in America® for Intellectual Property Litigation. His practice is split between high-stakes advocacy and proactive counseling. Bryan regularly represents clients in disputes before the National Advertising Division (NAD) and in federal courts nationwide, focusing on Lanham Act and false advertising claims. With a background in science communication, he is particularly skilled at navigating the technical complexities of claim substantiation across many sectors, including telecommunications, consumer electronics, and pharmaceuticals.

Laura Miller (Winston-Salem)

With a practice focused on the intersection of brand building and protection, Laura brings a robust "solutions-oriented" perspective to the team. Having served as interim in-house counsel for a Fortune 500 company, she understands the pressure to launch campaigns quickly while managing risk. Laura counsels some of the world's most recognizable brands on the legal mechanics of promotional marketing. Whether she is drafting talent and influencer agreements, structuring sweepstakes and contest rules or counseling clients on advertising and promotion methods, her goal is to ensure that marketing initiatives are as legally sound as they are creative.

Ty Lord (Atlanta)

Ty specializes in trademark and advertising counseling and litigation, with a distinguished track record in the food and beverage, apparel, and technology industries. Her experience as an interim in-house counsel and former assistant district attorney gives her a versatile edge in both the boardroom and the courtroom. Ty is a recognized leader in the field—named among the "Top 250 Women in IP" by Managing IP—and frequently advises clients on sponsorship deals, social media advertising campaigns, right of publicity issues, advertising claims, and the proper use of IP in advertising.

Evan Nadel (New York/San Francisco)

Evan is a nationally recognized leader in consumer protection and class action litigation, and Co-Chair of Kilpatrick's Class Action practice group. With extensive experience defending clients in high-exposure consumer class actions, regulatory investigations, and enforcement matters, Evan advises on compliance with federal and state consumer protection laws, risk mitigation, and strategic defense.
