Insights: News Releases

Kilpatrick Townsend's John Moye Elected to the Board of Directors of the Atlanta Center for Puppetry Arts

DECEMBER 16, 2015

ATLANTA (December 16) – Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton announced today that attorney John Moye has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Atlanta Center for Puppetry Arts.

The Center for Puppetry Arts is a unique cultural treasure - a magical place where children and adults are educated, enlightened and entertained. Since 1978, the Center has introduced millions of visitors to the wonder and art of puppetry and has touched the lives of many through enchanting performances, curriculum-based workshops, and the hands-on Museum, as well as Distance Learning and Outreach Programs. The Center uses the art form of puppetry as a means to provide educational experiences that encourage creativity, support school-day learning, fuel holistic development, and provide accessible, hands-on opportunities to participate in arts activities.

For more information on the Atlanta Center for Puppetry Arts, please click here.

Mr. Moye focuses his practice in the areas of technology and software litigation, trade secrets and restrictive covenants, telecommunications, and complex business litigation. He has represented clients in a number of federal and state court proceedings throughout the United States, including representing a large telecommunications provider in a contractual dispute with a number of rural carriers over the provision of so-called “Long Term Evolution” (LTE) technology, representing an iron distributor in a trade secret case against a number of former employees, and representing a number of businesses in cases involving the theft of electronic data. Mr. Moye has also represented a number of software companies in cases arising out of failed software implementations.

For more information about Kilpatrick Townsend, please visit: www.kilpatricktownsend.com.

Follow the firm on Twitter: @KTS_Law.

###