

Insights: Publications

PROPORTIONALITY: Tipping the Scale

KT LitSmart Blog

June 12, 2018

Written by Nicole D. Allen

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 1 mandates a “just, speedy, and inexpensive resolution of civil disputes.” In a perfect litigation world, parties would operate in good faith, draft reasonable discovery requests, answer requests completely and thoroughly, cooperate throughout the meet and confer process, and discovery would flow seamlessly. The real litigation world, however, does not usually follow this pattern.

Related People

Nicole D. Allen

t 404.815.6086

niallen@ktslaw.com