Unless you have been living under a rock, you should know by now that on August 21, 2017, a total solar eclipse will cross the continental United States, coast to coast. While the entire country will experience a partial eclipse, a total eclipse will occur along a roughly 70-mile-wide band, referred to as the “path of totality,” which spans parts of 14 states. Among the states in the path of totality are Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina, and South Carolina.
