Jennifer Giordano-Coltart Interviewed by NCBA's North Carolina Lawyer Magazine

May 18, 2022

As a partner on the firm's Chemistry and Life Science Team, Jennifer Giordano-Coltart represents clients in the health and life sciences fields. Prior to obtaining her law degree from Duke University, she earned a Ph.D. in molecular biology from Cornell University. Jennifer is a member of the North Carolina Bar Association's Intellectual Property Law Section. She has served on the section's council and co-leads the Chemistry and Biotech Committee. In this interview, Jennifer spoke about how her background in biology informs her legal practice, and what it is like to work with clients who create solutions for problems faced by individuals across the world.
