Aarti Shah Quoted in Law360, "IP Attorneys Warn District Court 'Playbook' Useless At ITC"

January 31, 2022

"While the ITC doesn't offer damages for past infringement like district courts, litigation funders have become increasingly interested in the agency given the possibility of large settlements, said Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP partner Aarti Shah... "In district court, usually the worst [that] happens if you lose [is] you pay something, but usually the profit margins cover it," Shah said. "You can at least still keep your reputation, you can keep your business going. You can't do that at the ITC. It's stopped."
