

Insights: Publications

Federal Circuit Provides Guidance On Patent Exhaustion Doctrine

Law360

March 17, 2015

The recent Federal Circuit decision concerning the scope of patent exhaustion has important implications for patent prosecution of related inventions in the same or related patent applications, the structure of licensing agreements relating to such different but closely related inventions, and to parties litigating issues of patent exhaustion. The article provides some insight from the authors on these issues.