Silicon Valley Office Managing Partner Joe Petersen recently provided commentary in CoinGeek's article, "Copyright Law in the Age of AI."

Generative AI technology is throwing up new challenges in the area of copyright law. Several court cases are arising that will have to answer the question of what relationship, if any, the content created by huge datasets of copyrighted work has to the creators of those original works. While the courts wrestle with this dilemma, another technology could potentially have the answer: blockchain.
