

Insights: Publications

Unenforceability of Patents Due to Applicant's Inequitable Conduct: A Discussion on Apotex Inc. v. UCB, Inc.

Saint Island International Patent Office, Intellectual Property Report, Vol. 17, No. 2

February 1, 2015

Written by Lisa Chung

This article examines the U.S. patent law doctrine of inequitable conduct and its severe consequences on patent enforceability. By analyzing the Federal Circuit's decision in Apotex Inc. v. UCB, Inc., the article provides strategic insights into the risks of withholding material prior art or information from the USPTO during prosecution..

Related People

Lisa Chung

t 202.508.5827

lchung@ktslaw.com