Artificial intelligence is quickly becoming essential to legal practice, promising not only speed and accuracy but also new levels of transparency and efficiency. Relativity's aiR for Review is a leader in this space for legal document review, issue identification, and deposition preparation.

aiR for Review provides rationales, considerations, citations, and scores for each prediction, giving legal teams the ability to (1) understand and trust the tool's decisions and (2) identify key themes much earlier in the process.

By leveraging aiR for Review's outputs, teams can enhance workflows, refine trial strategies, and create witness and issue packages for deposition and trial.

For practical guidance and more details on how aiR for Review's features can empower legal teams, I invite you to read my full guest blog at the Relativity Blog.
