

Insights: Publications

When Life Lost its Color

Ekstasis Magazine

March 17, 2022

Written by Alexander M. Mallory

“Think about how Dada has loved you when he’s sober,” my father texted. I read that message twice, three times, before it finally registered. His words were married to an ask: He wanted me to rebook him a flight from Honolulu to Omaha, where he had scheduled a detox appointment. Eight hours later, alcohol withdrawal claimed my father’s life. He was 54. He never boarded that flight.

Related People

Alexander M. Mallory

t 602.726.7312

amallory@ktslaw.com