Welcome to AI Monthly Minute, a short-form video series from Kilpatrick. Each month, attorneys across the Firm highlight what's happening at the intersection of intellectual property law, AI, and business.

In this introductory episode, Charles Gray, Partner at Kilpatrick and leader of Kilpatrick Labs, introduces our series and previews the topics we'll cover in the months ahead, including:

- Key court rulings and regulatory developments involving AI
- Practical issues clients are asking about
- How Kilpatrick is using AI in its own work
- Trends shaping the legal industry

Whether the focus is litigation, contracts, intellectual property, privacy, employment, ethics, or emerging legal tech tools, the goal is simple: give you a quick, useful snapshot of what matters in AI—without taking up too much of your time.

About Kilpatrick Labs

Kilpatrick recently launched Kilpatrick Labs, a dedicated AI research and development program operating more than 15 initiatives across patent and trademark prosecution, litigation monitoring, billing automation, and client-facing legal applications. Built on the firm's on-premises infrastructure and powered by an in-house Model Context Protocol (MCP) platform, Kilpatrick Labs connects 17 enterprise systems as standardized, AI-callable tools—keeping client data secure while giving attorneys access to cutting-edge technology.
