Insights: Publications

Blood Tribe member becomes first Indigenous president of Harvard University's legal aid program

CBC News

FEBRUARY 24, 2017

University of Lethbridge grad Julian SpearChief-Morris is in his second year of law school at Harvard. A member of southern Alberta's Blood Tribe has become the first Indigenous student to head Harvard Law School's Legal Aid Bureau in the history of the 104-year-old organization. Julian SpearChief-Morris was recently elected president of the bureau, the second largest provider of legal aid services in the Boston area.
