

Insights: Publications

Illinois and Oregon's Turn to Respond to Federal Tax Reform

Law360

March 13, 2018

Written by Lauren A. Ferrante

States are moving to advance different solutions in their efforts to address federal tax reform. Illinois recently introduced legislation to add back the new deduction for foreign-derived intangible income and its Department of Revenue has issued its position on other aspects of federal reform. Oregon, after resolving a controversy between the Senate and the House, is about to pass legislation addressing deemed repatriation income and repealing its tax haven inclusion provisions.

Related People

Lauren A. Ferrante

t 312.224.1039

lferrante@ktslaw.com