Shannon Bauer Miloch focuses her practice on wealth preservation, asset protection, and estate planning. She helps individuals and families plan and implement comprehensive estate planning strategies, while carefully considering various estate, gift, and generation-skipping transfer tax implications. Shannon works as a close partner with clients, taking the time to fully understand their personal circumstances, asset profile, and values, to craft an estate plan that accomplishes their goals and minimizes tax exposure.

Representing executors and trustees in probate proceedings and estate administrations, Shannon helps clients handling accountings, investments, tax compliance, and the other day-to-day aspects of serving as a fiduciary. She also works with business owners to integrate their business and personal objectives into their estate plan.
