

Insights: Publications

Who, What, When, and Why: A Survey of Denials for Judicial Enforcement of Subpoenas at the ITC

337 REPORTER, The Paul J. Luckern Summer Associate Edition, Volume XLVIII

June 20, 2024

Written by Jacob W. Lowenthal

The ITC has become an increasingly important venue for patent infringement lawsuits, though it is crucial to be mindful that it is not a traditional (Article III) court (a “Federal Court”). Instead, the ITC is an administrative agency and as such it operates differently than Federal Courts. One particularly notable difference is that the ITC’s subpoena powers are more limited than those of Federal Courts.

Related People

Jacob W. Lowenthal

t 404.685.6754

jlowenthal@ktslaw.com