

Insights: Perspectives

Text Messages: Preservation Lessons for Mobile E-Discovery

December 20, 2017

There was a time when the only data you needed to collect in response to a discovery request was corporate email. Fast forward to present day. Employees are conducting business with smartphones, via social media and with the assistance of wearable technology. As a result, responding to e-discovery requests has become increasingly challenging.

To read the full article, click here.